

The Web Applications are meant to be built for offering business services of an business to the customers so these are called b2c applications

The interoperable distributed applications are meant to be built for integrating other business applications with your business, so these applications are called b2b applications