

upon instantiating the object of the bean definition, ioc container passes it as an input to the bean post processor asking him to apply the post-processing logic for that bean definition, there after it places that object inside the ioc container

